ROGER A. PRYOR AND THE SOUTH.

Hon. Roger A. Pryor, well known in Wisconsin on account of the celebrated Pryor-Potter duel challenge just previous to the civil war, an original secessionist and "fire eater" of 1861, and a lifelong democrat of the free trade school, probably knows what he is talking about when he says that his views expressed in the New York Herald, of Sunday, will displease his party. He declares with striking frankness that President Harrison, by making protection the main issue between parties, will "break up what is called the solid south, and attract a very large proportion of the southern vote to the republican party." The reason given for this belief is that "the south is strongly in favor of a distinctly protective tariff." Certainly this information will not gratify the senators and representatives from southern states who have been vociferating that the south was solid against protection, and dreadfully indignant because it was systematically "robbed for the benefit of the north."

But Mr. Pryor appears to believe, as republicans do, that the actual opinion of southern citizens is not permitted to be represented by the southern votes that are cast and returned.

Mr. Pryor says the development of southern mining and manufacturing has created a great revolution in the actual sentiment of the southern people. He says, also, that the ancient whig party was "a most respected and weighty power at the south," and that the descendants of its members now on the stage have inherited the principles and prejudices of their ancestors. Mr. Pryor states that, "as an economic question, the principle of free trade is demonstrated," and "the protective policy is discredited by the argument of the political economists. But it may be in indispensable to the advancement and completeness of the resources and the power of the country." This is a really startling admission for Mr. Pryor, but he evidently believes that in his charge of the thought he represents a powerful body of democrats and former free traders at the south.

The south also leans toward the republican party because it believes in internal improvements and in liberal expenditures for development of resources. The old state rights notions, Mr. Pryor admits with refreshing candor, were asserted by the south exclusively for the purpose of defending slavery. But that institution being gone, "the necessity of federal aid in rebuilding their fallen fortunes and repairing their wasted resources compels the southern people to aggrandize the federal power." On that topic also Mr. Pryor says his "own political faith underwent modification," and while, "as a matter of dollars and cents, appropriations for the army and navy and for education are wasteful expenditure, yet such expenditure is essential to the prosperity and security of the country," Mr. Pryor says that he wants no office, and is only "a private and powerless citizen, but however small my influence, it is my duty to exert it for what I conceive to be the interest of the country."

This distinguished democrat has come to believe so nearly in republican principles that he is liable to be called a traitor by his hot-headed democratic friends. In his old state, for instance, it is not clear that he would find it quite safe to live and to take any part in public affairs. But his judgment, of southern opinion is correct, it will not long remain that fact that the election judges and polling clerks do the voting. When a strong body of southern democrats recede from that party, and demand free, fair and honest elections, the votes returned for the Birmingham district in Alabama will not long be more than two to one democratic.

THE SENATE ELECTION BILL.

The Cooper election bill, says the Milwaukee Sentinel, passed last week by the unanimous vote of the senate, is designed to secure that secrecy of the ballot which all agree is essential to honest elections and which has been obtained for Milwaukee by the Keogh bill. The bill appears to embody the best features of the Keogh law, the Massachusetts and New York laws, and the Australian system, with such modifications as are necessary to meet all reasonable objections. It provides for the absolute secrecy of the ballot, with ample provision for voting by illiterate and disabled persons, in this respect being an improvement on some other systems, it prohibits all electronic voting within 100 feet of any polling place; and it arranges for the printing and distribution of ballots at the public expense.

The bill is intended to extend to the state at large, wherever the registration laws apply, the benefits of the excellent system for the prevention of bribery and espionage at the polls now in this and other cities, with such improvements and modifications as experience has suggested. Its principles need no further advocacy. Every man who is in favor of honest elections must give consent to the proposition that bribery must be made impracticable and that every voter should be allowed to cast his ballot without business, social or political compulsion or intimidation. The Cooper bill appears in every way competent to effect these necessary ends. It is not an experiment, but every feature has been a marked success after ample trial. When such a law was applied to Louisville, objections were raised against its seeming complexity;

A RUNAWAY MARRIAGE.

A DAUGHTER OF CHIEF JUSTICE FULLER FLOPPES.

Married in Milwaukee to the Hon. of the Chief Justice of the U. S. in High Life.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., March 20.—Miss Pauline Fuller, the fifth daughter of Chief Justice Fuller, was married here Tuesday night at the Kirk house by a justice of the peace. The groom was J. Matt Aubrey, Jr., of Chicago, and it was a runaway match.

When the 6:30 St. Paul train arrived in the evening a petite woman, who stepped off the steps of the parlor car by a well-known young man with a smooth face. They were driven at once to the Kirk house, where they registered. No room was assigned to them, and the lady and her companion spent the early evening in the hotel parlors.

About 9 o'clock the young man came down stairs and informed the clerk that he wanted a justice of the peace. Clerk Cole is well up on such affairs, so he winked knowingly and assured the young man that everything would be arranged.

Inside of fifteen minutes Justice Gregory arrived. There was a hurried consultation and then the young man brought the blushing lady forward. The ceremony was brief and simple. The justice, who is a very prosaic old gentleman, put on no external display. He did not know that the bride was the daughter of the Chief Justice of the United States, and neither did any of those who were present outside of the contracting parties. When the ceremony was concluded the old justice called for witnesses and two young men were captured in the billiard room and ran to the altar, their signatures to the necessary document. The knot firmly spliced, the young man slipped a bill into his hand, and Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey were escorted to the bridal chamber.

The Bride and Groom.

Mrs. Aubrey, nee Pauline Fuller, is 19 years of age, highly educated, and a remarkably handsome woman. J. Matt Aubrey, Jr., is 23 years of age. He is the son of the general western agent of the Merchants' Dispatch fast freight line. J. Aubrey, Sr., lives at 3891 Vincennes avenue, and has been a resident of Chicago since 1875, when he left Milwaukee. He is well known here and Congressman Isaac Van Schick is one of his most intimate friends. Young Aubrey is employed in his father's office in Chicago. He is a handsome young fellow.

As near as can be learned the acquaintance between the bride and groom began about three years ago. Young Fuller, who was then plain Lawyer Fuller, lived with his eight daughters on Lake avenue only a short distance from the home of young Aubrey. The young people first met at a party given in the neighborhood. An attachment sprang up between them, and when it became apparent it was opposed by the Fullers, the bride declared, however, that she would marry with whom she pleased, and her father recognized her right to do as she pleased. Mrs. Fuller, however, vehemently opposed the match. About this time Lawyer Fuller was named as Chief Justice of the United States. Mrs. Fuller gleefully packed up and carried Miss Pauline away to Washington with the other Misses Fuller. After the 1st of last January Miss Pauline informed her mother that she was 19 years of age, and that she intended to make a trip to Chicago. Mrs. Fuller opposed the trip, but the girl was firm in her determination, and a few days later she left. Since that time she has been in Chicago visiting friends of the family.

ETIQUETTE ON THE ICE.

No truly polished urban person will go skating in his bare feet.

Ladies should never wear club skates with satin dancing slippers.

The really fashionable skate never weighs more than eighteen pounds.

Children under six months of age should not be allowed to wear club skates.

Never go skating with cream skates or other explosives in your coat tail pocket.

Keep your skates on the ice. Do not attempt to skate sitting down with your legs in the air.

If you wish to be considered original never cut the figure eight on the ice with your skates.

It is not de rigueur for persons weighing over 210 pounds to skate on ice that is less than an inch thick.

Avoid roller skates on real ice, and do not fall in near the danger signals unless you have your rubber on.

Always fall forward. No true gentleman will ever consent to crack his skull on the ice by falling backward.

Do not spread the elephant more than nine times in one evening unless you have an unusually large wardrobe.

Do not sit down to take off your skates in a slushy spot, unless you are near-sighted or cannot maintain your equilibrium.

Do not improvise skates. A shingle fastened on a carving knife is not a good skate, no matter how well the juncture is made.

Take your skates off when you are through skating. It is not de rigueur to wear them to church, the theater, or into the parlor.

If you wear screw skates, exercise diplomacy about the hole you make in the ice, and do not insert the gimlet farther than the bone.

Do not use ice skates to skate on flagstones. The grating of the blade on the stone will probably give you a chill if you break this rule.

Don't be too fresh while skating. Remember that you are on the ice and not likely to spoil even if you are not as fresh as you once were.

It does not look well for a young woman to be seen carrying a Chinese fan while skating, and no properly constituted person will wear a Panama hat on the ice even in the evening.

If your feet are so large that nothing but a bob sled will serve for a skate for you, do not pursue the sport on a small lake. Never skate on anything but the Atlantic ocean or a river like the Mississippi.

Skating on the slant roof of a Queen Anne cottage is a dangerous and unsatisfactory sport to all but lunatics, somnambulists, and would-be suicides—none of which are admitted to polite society in New York.

Popcorn balls are very light, but eating twenty-five of them does not give man the buoyancy he needs to keep him on his feet while skating, so that it will be well if you limit the number of your popcorn balls to eleven.

OLD WORLD NEWS.

An Exciting Debate in the House of Commons.

LONDON, March 20.—The House of Commons to-night are much excited over a suspicion that the government intends to gag the discussion Thursday of the Parnell commission conspiracy by rushing a vote on account through under closure.

There are vague reports that Attorney-General Webster has resigned and is urging Lord Salisbury to accept his resignation and let him get out of the House Thursday's storm broke, but that the ministry is holding him in and planning instead to resort to closure. Unless all signs fail Thursday will be the most dramatic day seen in the House of Commons for a long time.

In the House of Commons to-day Sir William Vernon Harcourt announced that he intended to move the action of the government in placing Irish officials, paid by the public, at the service of the Times in connection with that paper's charges against the Irish members of the House. He also announced that on the vote for Attorney-General Webster's salary he should ask what state services the attorney-general had rendered during the last nine months and why any salary should be paid him.

Sir Harcourt, in opposing the motion of the Rt. Hon. W. H. Smith, the government leader to give precedence to the vote on account until it was passed, accused the government of shirking discussion and of trying to introduce a new and surreptitious form of closure. He said that the time was drawing near when the House of Commons would become simply a vestry for the registering of government transactions.

Mr. Gladstone denied the right of the Rt. Hon. G. J. Goschen, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, to calculate beforehand what time should be allowed for the discussion of the vote. He said that questions of great delicacy must be discussed. He denied the right of the government to take away the right of the House to the time necessary for a full discussion.

Entertained by the Khedive.

LONDON, March 20.—A dispatch from Cairo, Egypt, says the Hon. Andrew D. White, ex-United States Minister to Germany, and Prof. Willard Fiske, formerly professor at Cornell university, who have been making a considerable stay in Cairo, expect to leave there to-day for the holy land. During their visit here, the two gentlemen have been entertained at dinner by the Khedive, and they were recently entertained at dinner by him at the palace.

Great Fire at Stuttgart.

STUTTGART, March 20.—The large cotton mills in the suburbs of this city owned by Mullinger caught fire to-day, and, although every effort was made to save them, the entire plant, comprising several large buildings and valuable machinery, and a large stock of cotton, was entirely consumed. The damage is estimated at 2,000,000 marks. About 6,000 employees are idle, and the suffering among them will be great.

Entertaining Ex-King Milan.

BUDA-PEST, March 20.—Ex-King Milan of Serbia arrived here to-day. He was accompanied by his wife and daughter, and a large number of courtiers. The king and queen were met at the station by the emperor and empress, and they were escorted to the palace.

Aggressive Tactics by the Opposition.

LONDON, March 20.—It is said that should the vote reducing Attorney-General Webster's salary for the opposition will introduce a motion censuring the government for its connection with the case of the Times against the Parnells.
